

Towards the respect of Rights and the Reinforcement of the Rule of Law

The AFKAR II Program
Empowering the Lebanese Civil Society

A Bridge between the Public Sector and Civil Society

The Afkar II Program represents the promotion of a trend set by a first model project implemented between 2004 and 2008 with the aim of supporting Lebanese civil society. The program provides, in its two parts, funds to initiatives undertaken by Lebanese NGOs in the fields of dialogue and human rights.

The program establishes an advanced-level partnership, with one of its aspects being manifested in the cooperation between the European Union as a party making two donations (one million Euro for the first and 3 million Euro for the second) and the Lebanese government, represented by the Office of the Minister of State for Administrative Reform, which is entrusted with managing the two parts of the program. The other aspect of this partnership is manifested in the cooperation between the public sector and civil society on projects that reflect society's needs and include plans for activities targeting the respect of basic rights and their enforcement.

The Afkar II Program has supported Lebanese NGOs in their attempt to fulfill the objectives of promoting dialogue among Lebanese youth groups and to enhance the respect of political, civil, and economic rights. The program has fulfilled the objectives of such initiatives to a large extent and in various domains. It has also led to a deeper level communication about these initiatives among the concerned parties, governmental and non-governmental, in addition to sharing experiences in order to develop capacities and improve performance.

This book is the second of its kind and it includes a presentation of the 24 projects funded by the Afkar II Program. It follows a first book in which the 16 projects of the Afkar I Program are presented.

Twenty-Four Projects Promoting Dialogue and the Respect of Rights

The Afkar II program was launched to support Lebanese civil society as regards the respect of political and civil rights, following the signature of a financial agreement between the European Union and the Office of the Minister of State for Administrative Reform on March 15, 2006. According to this agreement the EU funded the Afkar II Program with a total budget of 3 million Euros, 2,300,000 Euros being allocated to support initiatives undertaken by Lebanese NGOs.

After the Office of the Minister of State for Administrative Reform, with the participation of 69 Lebanese NGOs, drew various proposals, a panel of experts from the same office evaluated the submitted projects in collaboration with experts in civil society work in the presence of observers from the European Union. The evaluation process took place according to previously published criteria.

The winning projects numbered 24 and were divided, as decided, into two domains. The first one consisted of promoting civil, political, economic, and social rights in addition to democratic values through pressure and advocacy for the adoption, enforcement, or amendment of laws guaranteeing equality among citizens and marginalized groups before the law. These include, for instance, juvenile delinquents, drug addicts, present or former prisoners, the elderly, migrant workers, prostitutes, refugees, and others. The laws should also guarantee ensuring them legal and social protection. The second domain focuses on the promotion of dialogue among different Lebanese youth groups through new and innovative projects including artistic or cultural works, concrete participation, or the participation of people from diverse backgrounds, in a direct partnership with the beneficiaries. These projects were characterized by the variety of themes in the different areas. The projects funded by Afkar are:

In the area of promoting rights, 15 NGOs won and the winning projects had the following themes:

- “The Right of Making Work Available for All”, Al-Zawrak Foundation.
- “Toward a Greater Respect of the Rights of Drug Addicts”, Soukoun Association.
- “Advocating a New Media Law in Lebanon”, Maharat Foundation.
- “Twelve Angry Lebanese”, a play performed in prison, ADDL.
- “Psychosocial Interventions with Prisoners and their Families”, Restart Center, Lebanon.

- “Toward a National Law for the Protection from Domestic Violence”, KAFA.
 - “Informing Migrant Workers in Lebanon about the Practical and Legal Means to Assert their Basic Rights”, CESMO.
 - “A Model Strategy of Key Article Enforcement in Law 220/2000”, Forum of the Handicapped of the North.
 - “Promoting Tolerance of Marginalized Groups of Children and Youth in Lebanon”, Lebanese Autism Society.
 - “Life Does not Wait”, CDP.
 - “Toward an Ethical Independent Media Council in Lebanon”, LADE.
 - “The Lebanese Environmentalist”, Terre-Liban Association, Lebanon.
 - “Training in Gender-Related Terminology”, NCFUWI.
 - “Reducing the Burden of Mental Diseases in Lebanon: Towards the Creation of a Law for Mental Illnesses”, IDRAAC.
 - “The Lebanese Council to Resist Violence against Women as a Main Agent for Nationwide Change Regarding the VAW Issue”, LECORVAW.

In the area of promoting dialogue among youth groups, the projects had the following themes:

- “Young Journalists Struggling for the Promotion of Interfaith Dialogue”, Nahar Al-Shabab.
- “Entrusting the Youth Aged 16 or Less with Educational and Social Tasks with the Aim of Achieving Consensus across Lebanon’s Broad Political Spectrum”, Offre-joie.
- “Our Dialogue”, AFDC.
- “The Youth Express Themselves”, Mouvement Social.
- “The Other.com: from Awareness to Active Citizenship”, A Step Away.
- “Youth Communication”, Oum el-Nour.
- “Let’s Talk”, Makhzoumi Foundation.
- “The National e-Dialogue”, Baldati.
- “The Youth Right to Participation”, Permanent Peace Movement.

Technical Assistance and Eight Training Sessions

Like the Afkar I Program, Afkar II has funded projects undertaken by local organizations in addition to funding the technical assistance project provided by the European Emergence Foundation. The latter was selected according to the solicitation of bids procedure and according to common European procedures. A committee of experts from the Office of the Minister of State for Administrative Reform was in charge of the evaluation and selection process in the presence of observers from the European Union.

Technical assistance involved a number of tasks such as the follow-up of project implementation in coordination with the Afkar Program and the release of periodic reports about the follow-up results (8 reports). This necessitated the organization of 8 training sessions for the representatives of Lebanese NGOs, and the preparation of 8 dialogue seminars about issues of interest to Lebanese civil society, with the participation of the vital elements in such society.

The follow-up of the 24 projects contributed to removing various obstacles hindering the implementation process. It also facilitated the achievement of the objectives of the existing activities, and fostered the development of the partnership between the Office of the Minister of State for Administrative Reform and relevant organizations, on the basis of cooperation and equality.

As for the themes and content of the training sessions, they were selected according to a scientific and realistic identification of their needs in meetings held with decision-makers in the associations on the one hand, and with executive officers on the other hand. This approach allowed the identification of the most pressing needs. Thus, workshops were organized under the following titles:

- “Financial Management: Lebanese Laws and the Requirements of the European Union”
- “Monitoring: Capitalization and Assessment”
- “Team and Time Management”
- “Working with Children: Challenges and Stakes”
- “Group Dynamism: Activating Groups to Make them Engage in Dialogue and Conflict Resolution”
- “Volunteerism: the Management and Sustainability of Volunteer Service”
- “Identifying and Developing the Project Concepts, and Analyzing the Needs”
- “Project Planning and Preparation”.

The training workshops were led by 3 European and 8 Lebanese experts, while the participants were selected on the basis of the harmony between their roles and the material presented during the sessions, to ensure effectiveness and impact. The invitations were sent at intervals by giving priority to the Afkar II associations, followed by the Afkar I associations, and then by the rest of the associations.

These workshops were attended by 180 trainees, i.e. 20 to 25 persons on average per session. After every training workshop, Lebanese training experts ensured follow-up in order to consolidate the acquired concepts and contribute to putting them into practice. In this connection, the experts' reports identified an attempt to bring about change in the management of projects and institutions through the adoption of concepts and methods acquired during the training and follow-up periods.

Eight Seminars Held on Dialogue

The favorable reaction of NGOs and the media to the dialogue seminars was remarkable. The roundtables were held by the Office of the Minister of State for Administrative Reform within the framework of the AFKAR II Program and they were organized by the European Emergence Foundation. Drawing over 300 participants, these roundtables were characterized with a varied content, although some of the topics outdid others in terms of arousing the interest of civil society.

As for the dialogue seminars, or roundtables, they numbered eight and were held under the following titles:

- “Towards a National Strategy for the Abolition of Gender-Based Discriminatory Laws”
- “The Promotion of Inter-Youth Dialogue in Post-Conflict Periods”
- “Is the Drug Addict in Conflict with the Law or in Need of Treatment?”
- “The Status of Volunteers in the Organizational Hierarchies of NGOs”
- “The Role of the Media in Promoting Civil Society Concerns and Initiatives”
- “Post-Traumatic Program Approaches: Tasks and Challenges”

- “The Promotion of the Sense of Citizenship to Foster a Friendly Environment”
 - “Mechwar bi Afkar”, “A Trip to Afkar”.

These seminars were a meeting space for the Lebanese people and active NGOs to get acquainted, share experiences, concerns, and successes, discuss their problems, and put forward recommendations as the basis of future ideas and projects.

The different mass media ranging from the print to the audio-visual provided the coverage of these seminars, while the Afkar website posted their contents on the Internet. The program will also publish a book that includes the contents of these seminars and the various views expressed, in addition to the results and conclusions attained through these discussions.

Better Knowledge for a Better Future

The Afkar II Program has allowed a follow-up of the conditions of Lebanese civil society and a deep understanding of its problems and concerns. In this regard, the program monitored technical assistance, by constantly feeding the database relative to the Afkar I program. It also monitored NGO conditions in terms of their scope of work, staff and volunteers' numbers, the social groups benefiting from their projects, as well as the sources of funding. The collection of information on the various activities such as follow-up, training, and roundtables, has permitted drawing conclusions on the characteristics of civil society that can be used as points of departure. Thus, better progress can be achieved while the hindering difficulties and gaps can be dealt with in a professional and effective way.

The Afkar II Program has allowed the fund-receiving organizations, through projects and field experiment, to learn about the practical and legal conditions relative to the themes explored in these projects. It has also highlighted the roots of the problems and the suffering of the concerned categories. Thus, it has become a real communication bridge between civil society and its active organizations. In addition to promoting field communication, the Afkar II Program has sought to ensure e-communication by developing the layout and content of its website (<http://afkar.omsar.gov.lb>) with the aim of providing all the information, ideas, news, and publications in connection with the program.

SKOUN

Founded in 2003

Objectives

- Raising awareness of addiction and drugs in different social circles, particularly the youth, the most vulnerable group.
- Providing drug addicts with medical and psychological treatment and follow-up within an integrated treatment program (individual, collective, and family).
- Helping drug addicts to reintegrate in society during and following the treatment period.
- Offering advice, guidance and support to the families of drug addicts and their milieu.

Main activities

- Offering preventive programs in private and public schools through the Life Skills Program.
- Giving cultural lectures and organizing recreational activities with the aim of providing accurate and objective information on drug addiction and all kinds of drugs to school students and their families, university students, juveniles in special centers, and to the youth active in the field of social services or participating in summer camps and living in Palestinian camps.
- Organizing general meetings for groups of drug addicts, extending over a period of ten weeks and aiming at strengthening the relationship of each drug addict with their milieu, and helping them to assess their strengths and weaknesses in comparison with the rest of drug addicts participating in the meeting.

The Rights of Drug Users: Towards Greater Openness

Project definition and objectives

This project is funded by the European Union and is managed by OMSAR.

It aims at:

- The enforcement of the Drugs Act (1998), whereby there is respect for the right of drug addicts to treatment and to exemption from punishment in case they pledge to receive and complete the treatment.
- Urging people taking care of drug addicts to treat detained ones humanely.

Major publications

A booklet entitled Beyond Prejudice: an Addict, a Criminal, a Patient, and a documentary entitled “From To”, published by the Dar Onboz Publishing House.

Main activities

- Training the law enforcement personnel involved in combating drug addiction (100 members of the Narcotics Division, 80 heads of police stations and investigation officers, 1500 military recruits), in dealing with drug users by organizing for them awareness campaigns and training sessions which provide them with accurate and objective information about drugs and addiction.
- Organizing lectures and reflection meetings for judges (100 judges) to encourage them to play a key role in taking appropriate decisions on the amendment of drug legislations, referring drug addicts to treatment, treating them respectfully, and offering them care, thus preserving their dignity as human beings.
- Exerting pressure on the relevant ministries and law enforcement officers concerned with addicts with the aim of suspending punishment in case addicts pledge to receive and complete treatment, which is equivalent to the enforcement of the 1998 Act.

Initial project impact on targeted categories

- We are witnessing a nationwide interest in forming a committee that studies the establishment of a center providing free-of-charge treatment to drug addicts and AIDS patients.
- We have noticed that with respect to the latest verdicts on drug addicts, some judges started to refer the latter to treatment centers rather than sending them to prisons.
- We noticed, during the training sessions, responsiveness on the part of the participants. A large number stressed the importance of developing implementation decrees for the 1998 Act, particularly as regards the establishment of a governmental center providing free treatment, so that they can refer all drug addicts who pledge to receive treatment to it.
- The participants in the training sessions demanded the creation of a cooperation mechanism between the medical team and the judicial system. This allows for a follow-up of drug addicts and checking the seriousness of their commitment to undergo treatment.

Maharat

Founded in 2003

Objectives

The Maharat or skills association includes a team of young journalists who have worked together for some time and experienced practical difficulties and obstacles which free journalists face in Lebanon and the Arab World. They are united in their common aspiration for freer journalism and a much more democratic society. They consider that the only way to make the idea of peace deeply rooted is to promote democracy that is undermined in times of peace and war.

Main activities

The association focuses on reforming media laws in Lebanon, providing training opportunities to future journalists to enhance their professional capacities, producing reports on the status of the freedom of expression in Lebanon, in addition to the publication of books and training manuals on various media issues, including the media and conflicts, a media code of ethics, investigative journalism, the principles of credible information, the organization of seminars and meetings on the challenges posed by the profession, and the need to introduce reforms.

Towards a New Media Law in Lebanon

Project definition and objectives

The project aims at developing a vision for a new media law, as the current law is old and suffers from many deficiencies. The project also aims at making the Lebanese parliament adopt the proposed bill or a basket of proposals.

Main activities

While the preparatory work was being done, the Maharat team made many trips to Lebanon's mohafazat where many interviews were conducted, and dialogue groups and workshops were organized with journalists, activists and jurists to let them articulate their views regarding a modern media law.

This was followed by intensive work with a team of jurists, which consisted of monitoring and analyzing all the articles of the current law and suggesting alternatives to the articles that suffer from deficiencies.

After formulating a plan of suggestions and amendments, the Maharat team started working with Lebanese parliamentarians and chairpersons of specialized parliamentary committees to make them adopt recommendations or introduce some amendments to the current law.

Initial project impact on targeted categories

The project received special attention from the media. In fact, journalists expressed their desire to introduce a modern law which protects and advances the profession. The project was welcomed by some parliamentary committees as the bill was submitted to the Chairman of the Committee of Administration and Justice MP Robert Ghanem, and will be incorporated in the national plan for human rights that will be dealt with in parliament.

Enough Violence and Exploitation (KAFA)

Founded in 2005

Objectives

Seeking to check the causes and consequences of violence and exploitation targeting women and children within and outside the family.

Main activities

The goals are achieved through advocacy and awareness campaigns, while the victims are provided with social, legal and psychological services.

KAFA focuses on its working strategies and exerts efforts in three areas: trafficking in women and children, sexual harassment of children, and gender-based violence.

A Draft Law on the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence

Project definition and objectives

Violence against women within the family is the most common type in Lebanon, but it is still hidden behind social concepts and traditions which consider the practice of violence against women a private family matter, and an interference infringing on the inviolability of the home.

Under the influence of these concepts, many women - victims of violence – suffer in silence, in the absence of a law that ensures them the desired protection. Impediments to the efforts exerted to protect women and to criminalize domestic violence still persist.

Consequently, the Law on the Protection of Women from Family Violence limits this flagrant violation of women's human rights, and ensures protection from violence within the family.

To achieve the long-term objective, i.e. the law enactment, we are conducting a campaign to legalize the protection of women from family violence. This is a national and popular advocacy campaign aiming at:

- Admitting that violence against women is a crime and a violation of their human rights.
- Exerting pressure on the government to draft a law which protects women from family violence and punishes its perpetrators.
- Increasing awareness of the problem of family violence, and highlighting its different implications and effects.
- Activating the role of the local and media communities to form a lobby that adopts the law and calls for its promulgation.

Initial project impact on targeted categories

- An increase in the number of: the campaign supporters on the facebook, the volunteers for the campaign, the petition signatories, and the participants in the film competition.
- The success of the final ceremony of the 16-day-campaign at the UNESCO.
- Making the law an attractive media material for many audiovisual and written programs.
- Discussing the Law on Women's Protection from Family Violence in the Council of Ministers and working towards introducing amendments.

Major publications

- The draft law on women protection against family violence.
- Website: <http://protect.kafa.org.lb/>
- Group on facebook "Towards the Protection of Women from Family Violence"
- 5 TV spots with the participation of the performers Nada Abu Farhat and Ammar Chala'.

A film entitled "I Am for the Protection Law"

- 5 short films (3 minutes each) taking part in the film competition.
- Special campaign publications.
- A banner for the coalition.

Initial project impact on targeted categories

In addition to the direct benefits derived by the disabled from the project activities, particularly regarding education and architectural adaptation, there are signs of an indirect and long-term impact the target group can benefit from. These are:

- Communication through this project with a large number of political, social, economic, religious and cultural forces that can influence the decision-making process with respect to claiming the rights of the disabled. This communication is one of the contributors to awareness about the issue and to sensitization as the basis of making demands
- Receiving, through this project, a number of written guarantees contributing to the enforcement of the law:
 - A written cooperation

protocol signed by the Tripoli and Mina municipalities

- Written undertakings issued by the Tripoli and Mina municipalities to provide disabled facilities in the streets

- Obtaining an official authorization from the Training Division of the ISF General Directorate making the Forum a training institution for the police on the disabled right to move

- Including the issue of the disabled in the ministerial declaration, with the support of Mr Ibrahim Chamseddine, the Minister for Administrative Reform who made a promise in this regard during the conference

- Producing written recommendations in cooperation with the different partners involved in the four parts of the project, and developing practical implementation plans.

The Lebanese Environmentalist

Project definition and objectives

By conducting the Lebanese Environmentalist Project, T.E.R.R.E. LIBAN aims at spreading the Lebanese Environmentalist Charter. Putting it into practice necessitated the production and distribution of an educational portfolio to 1139 elementary and intermediate public schools after training civic education instructors in these schools, in the ways of using this portfolio with students. The latter can in turn raise public awareness in their neighborhood about the protection of the environment. The second practical step taken by the association had to do with the production and distribution of Khumbaya, an environmental newsletter which ensures the creation of a link among students all over Lebanon. The third step consisted of launching a competition for the active environmentalist to motivate students to protect the environment at the practical level. This charter includes material for dialogue and communication among students, far from politics and confessionalism.

Main activities

- The association has conducted 30 training sessions in Lebanon's six governorates, and has distributed 1139 educational portfolios in all elementary and intermediate public schools, as well as the first issue of the Khumbaya newsletter to 150,000 students between the fourth and eighth grades.
- The association launched for the school year 2008-2009 a competition for the active environmentalist to motivate students to protect their country's environment.

Major publications

- The educational portfolio of the Lebanese environmentalist which includes:
 - A guide explaining the Lebanese Environmental Charter.
 - A book on environmental activities.
 - A CD-Rom that assesses the environmental conditions in Lebanon in 240 photos.
 - A DVD entitled "Billy in Recycling Country".
 - A CD including songs by Paul Abi Rached.
 - An environmental newsletter, Khumbaya. (2 issues).

Initial project impact on targeted categories

- Once the project was launched at schools, some principals and instructors started raising the students' awareness of environmentalism and held meetings with the parents for the same purpose, using the Lebanese Environmentalist Charter portfolio.
- Students started sorting their paper garbage. The association has so far collected and sent sorted paper from 179 public schools to recycling factories.
- Students have engaged in many activities such as reforestation, cleaning, awareness campaigns, and other activities, in accordance with the Lebanese Environmentalist Charter.
- The association received thank-you letters from students as well as invitations to participate in the project launching ceremony.
- The association has witnessed a significant participation in the competition of the Active Environmentalist all over Lebanon
- The association received many calls from private schools to get information about the project, after learning about it from neighboring public schools.

The National Committee for the Follow-up of Women's Issues

Founded in 1996

Objectives

- Promoting women's participation in all areas of social, economic, and political life; modifying their roles; and eliminating all forms of discrimination against them.
- Raising awareness of the gender issue and incorporating it in national policies.
- Enabling women to participate in decision-making, to exercise their rights, and assume their responsibility in planning and developing public policies.
- Promoting values that encourage the respect of human rights, at the heart of which lie women's rights.
- Promoting communication among women at the local, regional, and global levels.

Main activities

- Developing a national strategy for women in cooperation with the National Commission for Lebanese Women.
- Issuing two documents on "The Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination against Women" in 1999.
- Issuing the second Lebanese document on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women in Lebanese laws in 2005.
- Establishing units and forming communication networks in different Lebanese areas, in addition to institutionalizing the National Committee in the framework of a plan of action to support national women's bodies.
- Preparing the national report on NGOs (Beijing +5).
- Establishing the Centre of Social Gender for Awareness, Training and Studies.
- Developing a plan for a gender-based reading and analysis of elementary school textbooks.

 - North Lebanon: Amendment of the Nationality Law.
 - Beirut: Marriage and Divorce in Islam
 - Mount Lebanon: Mothers' Right to Custody and Guardianship of their Children until They Reach Adulthood.

Training in Awareness of Gender Issues

Project definition and objectives

The project aims at:

- Highlighting the reality of discrimination against women in school textbooks (elementary and intermediate classes) in terms of images, expectations, roles and language, using the gender-based approach.
- Enabling the target category (instructors, coordinators, and principals) to read, analyze, and draft the content of school textbooks on Arabic reading and civic education in elementary and intermediate classes on the basis of social gender.

Major publications

- A first study: “Discrimination in School Textbooks on Arabic Reading and Civic Education in Elementary Classes, 2006”
- A second study: “Discrimination in School Textbooks on Arabic Reading and Civic Education in Intermediate Classes, 2008”
- Training packages for elementary and intermediate classes.

Main activities

- Holding six training sessions in collaboration with the Educational Centre for Research and Development for instructors, coordinators, and principals in Broummana on July 13-14, 20-21, 27-28, 2007, on November 9-10-11, 20-21-22, and 30, and on December 1-2, 2007.
- Carrying out a second study entitled “Discrimination in School Textbooks on Arabic Reading and Civic Education in Intermediate Classes, 2008”
- Holding two training sessions for instructors of intermediate classes on February 6, 7, 8 and 20, 21, 22, 2009 in Broummana.

Initial project impact on targeted categories

- The project has a very positive impact as it has achieved its goals.
- It produced a positive response on the part of the targeted category that was eager to acquire the information provided by the two studies as well as by the training sessions.
- The targeted category asked the organizers to hold the largest possible number of similar sessions.
- A suggestion was made on the need to have these associations communicate with instructors.
- The project contributed to a better understanding of the concept of social gender, and to the introduction of modifications and improvements to the curricula with the objective of achieving equality in social education through school textbooks.

Institute for Development Research
Advocacy and Applied Care
(IDRAAC)

Founded in 1982

Objectives

Promoting mental health research, increasing public awareness of mental health in Lebanon and the Arab World, and mobilizing communities to influence policy makers. The IDRAAC staff, i.e. physicians, psychologists, social workers, nurses, and researchers conduct studies on many topics such as: the impact of the war on mental health, depression and anxiety disorders, suicide, alcoholism, drug addiction, and others. The population under study includes adults, children, orphans, students, women, patients, and society in general.

Furthermore, IDRAAC offers social services as well as training programs in the field of mental health, and gives access to research papers to students specializing in psychology, nursing, pharmacy, social work, and public health.

Main activities

- The World Federation for Mental Health, Lebanon, aims at carrying out a comprehensive survey of mental disorders, in addition to chronic physiological diseases and other information on social, marital, and family relations, the professional and educational career of individuals, and individuals' experiences during childhood and adolescence. IDRAAC conducted this project in collaboration with the Department of Psychiatry and Psychology, University Medical Centre, Saint Georges Hospital and Balamad University, Harvard Medical School, and the World Health Organization (WHO).
- A training project that aims at improving family relations by training mothers who have children with behavioural problems making them vulnerable to physical violence. The mothers are trained to acquire special skills they can use to reduce their children's behavioural difficulties, and replace violence with psychological and educational tools as a means of communication.

IDRAAC carried out this project in collaboration with the Department of Psychiatry and Psychology, University Medical Centre, Saint Georges Hospital and Balamad University, the Higher Council for Childhood, the Ministry of Social Affairs, the Ministry of Health, with the support of Oxfam Quebec (CIDA)/ (CFSD).

- An evaluation study of the psychosocial conditions of children and adolescents in southern Lebanon and Beirut's southern suburb after the July 2006 War, in collaboration with the Department of Psychiatry and Psychology, University Medical Centre, Saint Georges Hospital and Balamad University, at the request of the Higher Council for Childhood, with the support of Handicap International and the European Commission's Humanitarian Aid Office (ECHO). The study included a comprehensive survey of all psychosocial resources in these areas as well as recommendations to planning stakeholders to help the Higher Council for Childhood make future steps.

Main activities

- Reviewing all the publications released in Lebanon and the Arab World on the burden and treatment of mental illnesses diseases, in addition to collecting information about all previous attempts to draft a proposal for a mental health law in Lebanon.
- Analyzing information on the burden and treatment of mental illnesses in Lebanon and releasing a report summarizing the results.
- Doing a comparative review of similar laws on mental illnesses in the Arab World and in European countries.
- Completing around 24 dialogue seminars with stakeholders to formulate a draft law on mental health in Lebanon.

Initial project impact on targeted categories

The effects resulting from the project include the following:

- Enhancing the information available to governmental bodies and NGOs on issues relating to the burden of mental disorders in Lebanon.
- Urging the concerned governmental bodies to make an increasing commitment to safeguarding the rights of persons with mental disorders. This helps to create better opportunities for the diagnosis, treatment, and rehabilitation of persons suffering from mental disorders and their integration in society, in addition to enabling them to work better, and to be productive at the economic and social levels.
- Improving coordination and sharing of experiences and information among all stakeholders.
- Urging the community to devote more attention to issues relative to the rights of persons with mental disorders.

The Lebanese Council to Resist Violence against Women (LECORVAW)

Founded in 1997

Objectives

Founded in 1997 in Beirut, and then in Tripoli in 1999, LECORVAW aims at breaking the taboo of violence against women (VAW) at the level of public awareness, out of its belief in non-violence and equality between women and men in all areas of life.

The association's strategy is based on two parallel but intertwined pillars:

Handling all VAW cases.

Ensuring a follow-up of women at the individual and family levels, thus curbing VAW by raising awareness and lobbying for law amendment.

Main activities

1- Providing direct assistance to women victims of violence

a- Counselling services and individual-family intervention
Individual and family intervention services as well as consultations are provided by specialized social workers in interviews held with every woman, or over the telephone, in addition to psychological counselling and follow-up by psychologists.

The role of social workers is centered on:

- Receiving emergency calls on the secure line which is available 24/7 and providing support and counseling.
- Providing victims of violence and their families with counseling services.
- Maintaining a professional support relationship with such women through phone calls or periodic interviews.
- Developing a work plan involving individual and family intervention to prevent the recurrence of violence.

- Ensuring individual and family follow-up for victims.
- Offering mediation between husbands and wives.
- Referring victims to institutions providing multiple services.

b- Legal services

- Providing free legal counseling for victims and their families by a panel of specialized lawyers.
- Covering the costs of legal action in case the people involved cannot afford it.

c- Group intervention

- Intervention of a group of women and girls suffering similar domestic violence.
- Ensuring assistance and mutual support.
- Sharing problems and suggesting possible solutions.

2- Development projects

- Sensitization and awareness-raising through a radical change of concepts popularized in the

The Lebanese Council to Resist Violence against Women (LECORVAW)

Main activities

educational curricula, by conducting awareness-raising workshops, giving lectures and seminars on domestic VAW, sexual harassment, and sexual abuse of adolescent girls.

•Offering training and workshops to workers in different fields at the forefront and in direct contact with women and girls who are victims of domestic violence. The workers include doctors, nurses, lawyers, the police and security forces, social workers in social and health institutions, and human rights activists.

• Socio-economic Empowerment of Women and Girls Victims of Domestic Violence.

• The project is a very important step in the development of LECORVAW's strategy and action plan. It is considered a collective intervention and developmental project at the community level.

The project aims at:

•Empowering women economically and socially, giving them the opportunity to find decent jobs, improving their social conditions through awareness courses on self-confidence, improving the relationships between parents and children and teenagers, and improving their economic conditions through vocational training, thus enabling them to achieve financial independence and to share in providing for their families.

LECORVAW implemented its first project on "Cosmetic Work and Nail Care" that was funded by Oxfam Quebec, and benefited 21 women.

It also implemented its second project on "The Industry of Sweets and Pastries" which was funded by the Council for Reconstruction and Development (CDR) and benefited 19 women.

3-Amending the Lebanese Personal Status Act

LECORVAW launched a campaign for amending the Personal Status Act from the office of the Lebanese Press Order. The campaign included the following demands:

•Raising the marriage age for both genders to 18 years.

•Granting equal rights to men and women to ask for divorce or separation.

•Raising the child custody age, for both boys and girls, to 15 years in favor of the mother.

The Lebanese Council to Resist Violence against Women (LECORVAW)

Main activities

- Creating a national fund to support children in case the father fails to pay the maintenance, following up the father and urging him to honor his obligations.
 - Streamlining and expediting judicial and legal proceedings in religious courts as regards the issues of divorce, separation, guardianship, child custody, and alimony.
 - Forming social committees in collaboration with religious courts.
- 4- Research and publications
LECORVAW has become an important source of research, studies, and statistics on battered women over the past ten years. The topics of research include:
- The Lebanese family and its different paradoxes.
 - A guide on awareness sessions dealing with the prevention of domestic violence.
 - Life is possible without violence and discrimination.
 - Arab women speak out
 - The perception of the present and future conditions of Lebanese families by university students.
 - A brochure on child sexual abuse, addressing teenagers.
 - My Neighborhood 2001 – about domestic VAW.
 - Sexual violence perpetrated against adolescent girls in Lebanon.
 - Honor crimes between reality and the law.
 - An advocacy guide and how to deal with the media.

LECORVAW as a Main Agent for Nationwide Change Regarding the VAW Issue

Project definition and objectives

This project contributes to the achievement of the overall LECORVAW objective which is curbing, fighting, and eliminating all forms of violence and discrimination against women, through the provision of direct assistance in the form of guidance for battered women and legal reform (legal advocacy and representation), research and publications, in addition to raising the awareness of Lebanese civil society, and conducting projects on the socio-economic empowerment of women.

The project seeks the promotion of women's rights and progress, particularly the rights of women and girls, the victims of domestic violence and the most vulnerable and marginalized category in society. The project seeks in particular the implementation of gender equality and curbing Gender-based Violence (GBV) and VAW.

This project is composed of three major parts that include a series of practical initiatives to create a Lebanese feminist movement to support the demands, bring about a reduction in the VAW ratio, and empower women. The project is aimed at establishing a nationwide institutional infrastructure by using as a basis LECORVAW's Listening & Counseling Centers LCCs operating at the local level. The objective is to support change, enable women to claim their rights, take their perceptions and opinions into consideration, collect the main facts, and conduct and monitor activities to track the outcome of GBV and VAW.

As a result, LECORVAW has focused on women's priorities, the organization of campaigns and advocacy with the aim of bringing about change. It has equipped LCCs with computers, and recruited a trained staff that works on the collection and production of data on the VAW issue.

The project broke the silence surrounding the VAW issue and shifted it from the private to the public sphere by elaborating a new draft law about the protection of the family from violence. Furthermore, LECORVAW produced and published a quarterly newsletter and a DVD on violence, and distributed them to the key sectors of Lebanon's civil society.

As for the specific objectives of the project, they are:

- Establishing a nationwide institutional infrastructure by developing information and services systems at LECORVAW's LCCs.
- Empowering battered females, a vulnerable and marginalized category in Lebanese society, through counseling and follow-up with respect to social services, psychological assessment and medical care, as well as legal services.
- Enhancing the capacity of Lebanese civil society to understand the VAW issue and to deal with it properly.

LECORVAW as a Main Agent for Nationwide Change Regarding the VAW Issue

Main activities

The main activities performed in the establishment of a nationwide institutional infrastructure and in the development of information systems are:

- Purchasing new furniture and equipment for LCCs (computers, printers, offices...)
- Designing special software for the application form to be filled in by battered women reporting to LECORVAW: data computerization.

The main activities performed in the provision of social, psychological, and legal services to women are:

- Receiving calls on the direct secure line.
- Responding to all calls and explaining safety plans.
- Making appointments with social workers.
- Receiving and listening to women visiting LCCs.
- Developing a work and social intervention plan with battered women.
- Providing a follow-up of battered women to ensure the implementation of the work plan.

- Surveying local enterprises which offer different services.
- Ensuring that battered women coming to the center are referred to LECORVAW and those calling are referred to the secure line.

The main activities performed to empower and enhance the capacities of Lebanese civil society to help it understand and properly deal with VAW issue are:

- Developing a draft law on the protection of the Lebanese family from domestic violence.
- Releasing four issues of the magazine Echo of Silence, and a CD including a documentary film that addresses the VAW issue.
- Holding awareness workshops targeting enterprises and forefront workers.

Major publications

- A draft law on the protection of the Lebanese family from domestic violence.
- Four issues of the magazine Echo of Silence, and a CD including a documentary film that addresses the VAW issue.

LECORVAW as a Main Agent for Nationwide Change Regarding the VAW Issue

Initial project impact on targeted categories

Every project supporting LECORVAW's LCCs helps us get closer to determining our objectives, and helps us persevere in our fight against VAW in Lebanon. This is done by increasingly serving battered women, in addition to disseminating information in Lebanese civil society about LECORVAW's objectives.

Serving battered women, which is provided by LECORVAW, is not originally available in Lebanon. Therefore, it is easy for us to understand the impact of this project on women if we understand the problems and obstacles they face.

The clear impact of this project is visible in the change brought about to the lives of benefiting women, the services they are offered and their contribution to giving them hope in freedom and in a new life, as well as the opportunity to express themselves in public and to reject abuse and repression. At the same time they are trying to claim their rights by using all available means, even if they have to take legal action and speak openly about violence of which they are victims.

Although this impact cannot be measured, it is great as far as women's conditions in Lebanon are concerned.

In addition, the activities targeting Lebanese civil society contribute to changing behavior and positions regarding battered women, rather than considering them responsible for the violence they are victim of. A large social segment will start treating them as victims of violence and in need of urgent support and assistance.

The project will raise the level of awareness in civil society regarding this problem, and will provide it with sufficient information on the causes and results of violence.

Finally, the hoped-for impact of the project is to raise the living standards and to improve the conditions of Lebanese women. This can be done by adopting the empowerment approach which rests on eliminating "legal illiteracy", publishing and disseminating information, and raising the level of awareness in Lebanese society. This encourages battered women to take positive steps and speak openly about violence in an attempt to put an end to it. What is needed is changing the behavior and attitudes of battered women from negative to positive, and the adoption of new approaches to the VAW issue by Lebanese civil society.

Initial project impact on targeted categories

Many signs testify to the success of the project particularly in terms of its long-term impact. The centre, which offers access to educational, artistic, and social activities, has become a forum for the youth with different religious backgrounds in the west Beka', where they interact and launch new activities. The centre is active and will remain functional after the completion of the project, and it represents one the permanent activities undertaken by Offre Joie.

Association for Forests, Development, and Conservation (AFDC)

Founded in 1993

Objectives

The Association for Forests, Development and Conservation (AFDC) was established in 1993, and is a non-profit NGO that aims at achieving sustainable conservation of natural resources, raising awareness, and building capacities to contribute to the national efforts for better environmental management. Fundamental to AFDC's mission is the pursuit of community-based conservation for the sustainable livelihoods of people. This comes from the idea that conservation will fail if local communities do not benefit from it.

Main activities

AFDC carries out activities over the regional geographic boundaries, including all of Lebanon in order to achieve better environmental management at the national level, within the framework of its four programs:

- Nature conservation: fighting forest fires, reforestation, rural development, and environmental and rural tourism.
- Networking and Capacity-building: awareness and environmental education, capacity building and training, media and marketing.

- Research and development: research in the field of sustainable development and environmental monitoring, development of projects and programs, and receiving university trainees.

- General policies and campaigns: religion and the preservation of the environment, general environmental policies, and relief campaigns during wars.

Hiwaruna

Project definition and objectives

The project is implemented under AFDC's Advocacy Program, which aims at reforming and changing environmental policies as well as encouraging youth involvement and participation in environmental and developmental practices. Hiwaruna aims at:

- Creating an environment for constructive dialogue and improved communication among the Lebanese youth with different political, social and cultural leanings.
- Equipping the Lebanese youth with skills they need to participate in the dialogue workshop sessions successfully through teambuilding and personal development training.
- Arranging dialogue series through informal education using indoor and outdoor ropes courses.

Major publications

- Brochures
- Posters
- Handbooks
- Reportage
- Press releases

Main activities

- Creating a network of university students from all Lebanese areas.
- Organizing meetings for youth groups from different backgrounds and affiliations.
- Holding workshops to build the capacities of the participants using the techniques of learning through experience.
- Organizing and holding interactive workshops on specific topics, such as the environment, environmental policy, and social issues.
- Activating communication through the application of roles and practicing field activities, activating team building skills and leadership skills using the techniques of learning through experience.
- Disseminating the project results in a special handbook.

Initial project impact on targeted categories

Our project is a pilot one as it adopts a different approach to dialogue. It is the first project in Lebanon that includes experiential learning, and focuses on learning the basics of dialogue in particular, as well as the use of leadership and team building skills. The youth were able to spread the culture of dialogue in their universities and local communities and to communicate continuously through WebPages and meetings.

The most important impact is translated into the acceptance of cultural pluralism and building multicultural friendships; participating in the dialogue and respecting the views and needs of other cultures; and looking for a common ground, despite the differences among them.

Mouvement Social

Founded in 1960

Objectives

- Identifying weaknesses in different fields and finding solutions to them
- Mobilizing the largest possible number of volunteers and members for commitment to social action and in different fields of development

Main activities

- Rehabilitating juvenile offenders in the Roumieh Prison, and women in the Barbar al-Khazen Prison, and helping them to reintegrate in society and build their future life.
- Working on the question of school dropouts by interfering directly with students and by adopting advocacy
- Attracting volunteers among university students and training them in commitment to social issues
- Training youth groups and empowering them by fostering a sense of citizenship, and by enhancing their understanding of conflict resolution, their acceptance of the other, as well as their communication skills
- Providing the youth facing difficulties with immediate professional training and social rehabilitation services

The Youth Express Themselves

Project definition and objectives

The project targets five youth groups aged between 15 and 18, and drawn from five Lebanese villages in different mohafazats, with every village having a specific confessional character. The project aims at activating the role of NGOs in different areas so that they set a framework for dialogue among the youth with varied backgrounds. It also aims at developing youth potential regarding openness, dialogue, self-expression, and democratic participation in public discourse.

Main activities

- Training the youth in the dialogue procedure and the concept of affiliation.
- Training NGOs in the psychological and social follow-up of the youth.
- Equipping and running writing workshops in the five areas, with NGO assistance.
- Establishing advisory youth bodies in the five areas.
- Organizing a summer camp for youth groups and local NGOs.

Initial project impact on targeted categories

Change at the level of self-expression and behaviour of the youth groups and at the level of dealing with people with different backgrounds, building close relations with each other, social commitment to the questions pertaining to their villages, and willingness to volunteer.

Major publications

- A booklet entitled The Youth Express Themselves, a Joint Product of the Five Groups.
- 3 newsletters.

A Step Away

Founded in 2000

Objectives

Since its foundation, the association has been active in the dissemination of culture, the production of contemporary art, and in activating the role of art in extending rights, spreading democracy and raising awareness of social justice.

Main activities

Signs of Belonging, 16sproj.com, “The Other Program”, the Audiovisual Society, the Forum theater.

The Other

Project definition and objectives

"The other.com" aims at enabling the youth to enhance their awareness and knowledge of the issues of citizenship, and to assist them in creating a framework in which they can be active in instilling the values of diversity and non-discrimination. This is done through training workshops that provide participants with skills enabling them to use art, audiovisual media and communication tools with which they create a network of young social activists. Their task consists of designing, making, managing, developing and marketing a special website. They also produce films and a booklet, design an advertising- promotional campaign, and organize exhibitions in different Lebanese areas.

Let Us Engage in Dialogue

Project definition and objectives

The project aims at bringing together students aged between 12 and 14 from private and public schools in Beirut and its suburbs, familiarizing them with the Convention on the Rights of the Child to enable them to discuss various issues related to the convention, and encouraging them to identify the values and principles embodied in it.

The project duration is two years and it will produce two plays performed by the students with the following objectives:

- Highlighting the role of dialogue in finding solutions to different problems.
- Focusing on Article 13 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child, which emphasizes children's right to express themselves and to have access to information from various sources.
- Identifying ways to encourage dialogue among the youth from different religious and social backgrounds.
- Helping the youth to sharpen their skills with the assistance of specialists, and promoting their creativity.
- Encouraging the youth to cherish values and to uphold principles.

- Encouraging the youth to respect each other and to recognize each other's rights.
- Giving the youth the opportunity to share ideas and to draw the moral of the play.
- Giving the youth the opportunity to express themselves and to discuss their values and beliefs.
- Promoting a team spirit, encouraging cooperation and respect, and strengthening friendship ties among them.
- Developing a dialogue pattern and a course to be distributed to all Lebanese schools.

Main activities

- Organizing two educational seminars held over two years, each consisting of four workshops on the content of the Convention on the Rights of the Child.
- Organizing dance and art shows with the assistance of specialists in the framework of 29 training courses each year.
- Giving two theatrical performances (one play each year) by students in five shows each year.
- Making 3,000 DVD copies of the play each year.
- Distributing them to Lebanese schools and interested parties.

Initial project impact on targeted categories

- The establishment of an internet communication network among the students participating in the work during the first year of the project.
- Growing interest among many schools participating in the project after they learned about it from the media, and among the audience that saw the play. This interest was manifested in their request for additional copies of the Convention on the Rights of the Child.
- Requests made by many schools and NGOs for the performance of the play in their theatres.

Major publications

Preparing 10,000 summarized and animated copies of the Convention on the Rights of the Child. The final annual product of the project:

- 3,000 DVD copies of the play.
- 3,000 booklets including the approach adopted in the conduct of the activity.

Baldati National e-Dialogue

Project definition and objectives

The project consists of launching a Lebanese e-Dialogue that runs parallel to the needed “well-known” Lebanese National Dialogue. When the latter, which excludes most of the Lebanese, led to the closure of the Beirut Downtown area for security reasons, and failed to get other than Lebanese leaders together, the former invited all the Lebanese, particularly the youth, to assume their responsibilities in their communities. Thus, they are enabled wherever they are, whenever they want, abroad, at home, at work, in their village or in the city, in the car or in a café, to be part of national life through the e-Dialogue that involves all Lebanese communities in one portal www.baldati.com. At the end, elections will be held to choose the best Baldati moderator, facilitator, and host in a final ceremony during which people can get the results in presentations while witnesses and hard workers are rewarded in the best way.

We believe that the participants should come up with a sort of e-Referendum that can be our guide to a better and stable e-Lebanon owing to the existence of clear and previously defined objectives, valuable incentives, proper technical preparation, a good promotional campaign allowing us to reach every Lebanese in the world, a carefully planned follow-up and capacity building for those who need it, as well as switching between a neutral cyber space and typical targeted outdoor activities.

Our e-Dialogue is the only space that can host millions of people without even disrupting traffic. There is not need for a parking lot, or classic suits; all that is required is goodwill to make a difference.

The specific objectives are:

- Promoting interfaith dialogue by targeting critical age groups.
- Training the youth to use the regional media tool provided by Baldati.com as a way to discuss their ideas and express themselves.

- Training managers from each village (or city) having the potential to train others at a later stage and to manage their native village website.
- Promoting a virtual space (www.baldati.com), accessible from almost every house, for the suggestion and discussion of ideas and projects.
- Creating a section for online learning as an ICT4D (Internet Communication Technology for Dialogue).
- Promoting knowledge of Lebanese society and its components in youth circles, in addition to promoting the concepts of their rights and obligations to their country.

Baldati National e-Dialogue

Main activities

Activity 1- Preparation of the office and the needed applications on the website:

- Equipping the meeting room in the Baldati offices and enhancing the website www.baldati.com

Activity 2- Press conference and media campaign to launch and announce the project.

Activity 3- Launching a campaign in each caza (schools, universities).

- 25 media appearances throughout the project duration.

- Targeting 1437 young people in 12 schools, 15 universities, and 8 NGOs, and organizing roadshows all over Lebanon's 5 governorates. The gender distribution of the targeted people is 51.64% females and 48.36 % males.

Activity 4- Launching the website of the e-Dialogue to conduct opinion polls about ten issues that members find most interesting:

- The opinion poll covered 1072 participants on the website module and resulted in the choice of 10 main discussion topics.

Activity 5- The current e-

Dialogue on the internet and moderating the e-Dialogue on the following topics:

- Interfaith Dialogue
- The educational system
- Dialogue between generations
- Emigration
- Civil marriage
- Best political system for Lebanon

- Best economic strategy for Lebanon

- The political role of the communities

- Lebanon's defense policy
- The electoral law

Activity 6- The training and capacity building training sessions whereby continuous training is divided into 3 kinds of actions:

- Online assistance from experts (trainers) during the e-Dialogue period.

- Physical presence in actual meetings for support and direct intervention.

- Training workshop in Baldati offices.

The main topics dealt with in training were as follows:

- An interactive course on the Lebanese constitution.

- An interactive course on journalism.

- An interactive course on management.

- An interactive course on teamwork.

- An interactive course on human rights.

- Introducing www.baldati.com as a regional media tool for dialogue and project management.

Activity 7- Hiking trips:

- Making 25 different hiking trips all over Lebanon during which the discussion covered the selected topics.

- The participation of 620 people in the hiking trips.

Activity 8- Publishing a summary of the discussions on the web and giving a final rating of the participants:

The points are calculated for:

- The best Baldati host
- The best Baldati moderator
- The best Baldati facilitator
- The best 3 topics

Activity 9 - The final ceremony

The ceremony was held at the Palais de L'UNESCO on September 1, 2008 under the patronage of the Office of the Minister of State for Administrative Reform and the prizes were offered to the 3 winners.

Baldati National e-Dialogue

Major publications
